

PRINCESS KAWANAKOA, QUEEN OF THE REVELS.

SOCIETY

Through the energy of the Kiloheha Art League members the catalogue of the coming exhibition outnumbers the one given in the spring. The first view reception takes place tomorrow evening at the League rooms, and the following ladies will receive upon that occasion: Mrs. F. R. Day, Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Mrs. W. M. Graham, Mrs. A. R. Gurrey, Jr., Mrs. H. M. von Holt, Mrs. May Mott-Smith. Bird thoughtfully sent a number of contributions on the last steamer, and these with the product of several new contributors will be of much interest. The first view evening is an invitation function, but beginning with Tuesday the exhibition will be open day and evening for the present week and the one following, and will be free.

Mrs. Chas. Rice accompanied her husband from Kauai to attend yesterday's polo game.

Mrs. George Fairchild of Kauai is visiting in Honolulu.

Mr. W. G. Irwin leaves for San Francisco on November 18, to be absent for several months.

Admiral Terry's wife, son and daughter, are expected to arrive this month from the East. Miss Terry is said to be one of the attractive girls of the navy.

The Healan Masquerade will go into the social archives of Honolulu as one of the first artistic successes. The long promenades on the Young Hotel roof garden, the beautiful ballrooms, the exquisite gowns of the Queen of the Masque and the Court ladies, together with the courtier attire of the Knight of the Revels, and the fantastic garb of the revellers, formed a composite picture of gayety long to be remembered. Princess Kawanakoa, the Queen of the Masque, radiant in her own brunette beauty, was also regal in her court robes and glittering jewels. In the King of the Revels, Arthur M. Brown, the Queen had a royal-looking consort, and both upon their thrones compelled the obeisance of their court and subjects by their winning smiles. George Potter, in trailing robes, with the jewelled necklace and staff of office, led the procession on the promenade to the ballroom where the plush-covered thrones awaited the royal pair. Allan Dunn, as court jester, accompanied them and took his seat upon the steps, bantering the subjects as they paid their homage to the sovereigns. The Queen wore a costume of ivory silk, a la Princess, with a train of ruffled chiffon. The corsage and train were ornamented with yellow flowers and applique lace. Over this was worn a heavy ivory silk court train lined with heavy satin, caught at the shoulders and waist by diamond brooches. A trimming of applique lace finished the royal garment. The train was borne by two little pages in silk. Upon the coiffure was worn a magnificent tiara of diamonds from Tiffany's, and about the Queen's throat was clasped a sparkling necklace of diamonds and emeralds. The ladies of the masque, dainty matrons and maids in Princess gowns, with hair powdered and topped with large hats of the Directoire period, and carrying staffs, were: Mesdames Byron Baird, J. B. Dougherty, A. G. Hawes, C. Kimball, Harry Macfarlane, E. D. Tenney, and the Misses Bacon, Cartwright, Cunha, Hartnagle, Macfarlane, White.

The Knights of the Revels were H. C. Carter, H. D. W. Cobb, F. B. Damon, J. B. Dougherty, F. W. Macfarlane, Jr., C. A. Mackintosh, C. C. Perkins, A. Spivello, J. W. Waldron and E. M. Watson.

The prizes were awarded to Mrs. Schuman, as "Crotons," for the most original woman's costume; and to Doctor Hutchinson, as "Kim, a Hindoo," for the most original men's costume; Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, as "Scherzerade," for the most beautiful costume; Mr. Harry Macfarlane, a Chinese mandarin, for best men's costume; R. Beverly Kidd, the overgrown baby, for most fantastic men's costume; Mrs. Laura Warren, as "Topsy," for most fantastic women's costume.

The patronesses, who occupied boxes, were: Mesdames A. T. Atkinson, E. F. Bishop, A. M. Brown, J. E. Castle, C. B. Cooper, H. E. Cooper, C. L. Crabbe, B. F. Dillingham, S. B. Dole, H. Focke, F. M. Hatch, R. Ivers, H. W. Lake, J. S. McGrew, H. Macfarlane, Samuel Parker, E. D. Tenney, J. S. Walker, A. F. Wall, S. G. Wilder, Mary C. Widdifield, Princess Kawanakoa.

The officers composing the U. S. Army board to select fort sites on Oahu, occupied a special box, and Secretary Carter and friends another.

Mrs. Renjes (nee Coney), and daughter May come here from Germany next spring for an extended visit.

Miss Margaret McIntyre will shortly accompany Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis to the coast.

Town Talk says: I hear that Matteo Sandona is very popular in Honolulu, where he is being made much of socially. As he is a handsome youth, with the dreamy eyes and dulcet speech of his people of Verona, it is quite natural that women should wish to lionize him. He has painted portraits of Prince and Princess David, Mrs. Sam Parker, Miss Campbell and of the baby prince, and Dr. McGrew is now sitting for his picture. Princess David has issued invitations for a private exhibition of the Sandona portraits, to be given at her residence. The artist will remain in Honolulu indefinitely.

Mrs. Philip Frear will receive on the first and second Mondays at 1927 Makiki street.

Mrs. J. C. Cohen is domiciled at the Young Hotel.

A London dispatch of October 17, says: "With the 'Duchess of Dantzic' at the Lyric theater, George Edwardes tonight made his first experiment in comic opera proper. The piece, which is in three acts, is founded on Sardou's 'Mme. Sans Gene.' The lyrics are by Henry Hamilton and the music by Ivan Caryll." Holbrook Blinn bore off the honors of the evening as Napoleon, and was admirably supported by Evie Green as Sans Gene and Courtice Pounds as the court milliner. King Edward attended the performance, and the audience cheered the play enthusiastically.

Holbrook Blinn will be remembered by many as the husband of Miss Ruth Benson, daughter of Maj. Benson of Benson & Smith.

Capt. Niblack, U. S. N., departed for San Francisco on the Korea to wed Miss Harrington, on November 25.

Capt. Hugh Rodman is expected back from Midway on Monday.

Punahou grounds were ablaze with Oriental lanterns on Thursday evening and the buildings opened to the throngs of guests who greeted Pres. and Mrs. Griffiths and the new members of the faculty. The reception, which was attended by nearly four hundred people, was held in Pauahi hall. President and Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Bettis, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Neil, and Mr. and Mrs. Barton were in the receiving line, greeting their guests in a space bordered with palms. Refreshments were served upon the lawn which was dotted with small tables and dancing was enjoyed in Pauahi hall by the younger guests.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Braymer are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Cornwell, Jr., at their new home in Kula, Maui.

The Denver News gives the following account of the wedding of Miss Edna Case, who visited Honolulu last year as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Baird:

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Case, Miss Edna Case and Gilbert McElveen were married yesterday at high noon. Simplicity marked every detail of the arrangements. The bride was unattended, and wore her traveling gown of blue cloth with hat to match. The Episcopal service was read by the Rev. George Vosburgh in the presence of members of the two families. In the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed, the decorations were palms and red roses, and in the library carnations were used. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. The table was decorated in pink, and a great bunch of pink roses formed the centerpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. McElveen left yesterday for New York and Pittsburg, where they will spend several weeks, returning to Denver for the holidays.

After that they will go abroad. Miss Case is conceded to be the most beautiful girl in Denver society. Her beauty is matched by her cleverness, and her hosts of friends testify to her charm of manner and loveliness of disposition. Mr. McElveen has made many friends since coming to Denver from Pittsburg last winter. Mr. and Mrs. McElveen will probably eventually locate in Denver and make this city their home. Alfred McElveen was the only member of Mr. McElveen's family present.

Town Talk says: Silas Palmer and Douglas McBryde are going to build a bungalow somewhere above Marysville, for the nature of their work as stone contractors requires their presence frequently in that section. Mrs. Palmer is already planning house parties, but only those who are agreeable guests under roughing-it conditions will be invited. Mr. McBryde and Mr. Palmer became great friends when the Palmers were in Honolulu on their wedding trip. The former has been here only a month, but intends to make this city his home. He will take apartments for himself and baby daughter, and is also talking of building at Menlo.

Dr. and Mrs. White entertained at dinner on Wednesday evening at the Young Hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. Campbell and son of Chicago.

Mr. T. Clive Davies is rapidly convalescing from the recent operation for appendicitis.

Veils are growing more voluminous and popular as the winter season approaches, says a fashion writer. They not only drape the headgear of the fashionable matron and maid, but the very latest novelty swaths the head and neck of the wearer, almost beyond recognition. These veils are of chiffon of any substantial color, blue, black or brown. They are three yards long and are slashed "half and half." The broad end is gathered into a wire circle six inches in diameter that fits over the crown of the hat. The ends are crossed over the back and brought around in front, when they are loosely knotted or clasped with an ornament.

Sword Swallower: "Yes, John has quit accepting invitations to dinner at the Bagsleys." "He has? Why, what's the matter?" "He says their knives are so sharp they cut his mouth."—Ex.
